DR. D. REA,
Celebrated Specialist.

And in charge of the Electrical and Surgical Department of the Medical Institute, Louisville, Ky., will be at the

CLOVERPORT HOTEL, Cloverport, Ky.,
And returns Every Four Weeks during the Year.

Dr. Rea has been connected with the largest hospitals in the country, and has no superior in diagnosing and treating diseases and deformities. He will give $5 for any case that he cannot tell the disease and where located in five minutes.

Treats All Curable Medical and Surgical Diseases. Acute and Chronic. Rheumatism, Catarrh, Quins, a number of them have been cured. And they put the art of the modern jeweler entirely to the blush. The most beautiful were the pledges of betrothal or wedding gifts. The ceremonies in connection with these rings seem to be foreshadowed in the redemption process specified in Ruth iv. 7. The workmanship of these Hebrew betrothal rings grew still more elaborate in the Middle Ages, when towers and minarets of gold were most exquisitely built up on the hoop. The Jewish bride of the era wore the wedding ring on the first finger, but in later days shifted it for convenience to the fourth.

The old style "gemmel" or "gemmon" ring (evidently associated with the French jewelers' gemmel, unknown in this country) is not at all an object in collections of antique rings.

The meaning of the indivisible links is self-evident. Usually at the marriage of the parties the links were severed, each party wearing one of the rings. George F. gave a gemmel ring to Mrs. F. Herbert. The toadstone ring was another medieval conception. It was an outcome of superstition and not of superstition. The idea of the toadstone ring was to prevent mothers and small children from the evil influences of the fairies. The smallest wedding ring ever fashioned was that used at the marriage of Mary, the first daughter of Henry VIII. of England, to the Dauphin of France, son of Francis I. The marriage was performed by Cardinals Wolsey and Campeggio, the latter being about 100 months old and the bride 1 year and 10 months old.—Boston Globe.

RINGS OF THE ANCIENTS. STYLES WORN BY THE EGYPTIANS, ROMANS AND HEBREWS.

Rings Are Regarded Differently Now Than Formerly—Were Not so Much for Ornament as for Their Intricate Value. Some Famous Rings in History.

Looking at the exhibition of modern finger rings, the old finger is forcibly struck by the fact that, whereas in the good old days the decorative art and design were almost wholly expended on the gold band itself, modern jewelers confined themselves almost exclusively to combinations of valuable stones. It is a very singular fact, to quote a romance, but cold truth compels the admission that this is a practical age, which looks largely to the matter of utility, utility in rings, watches and valuable presents.

Actors and actresses on their travels are seldom seen without a diamond ring, brooch, necklace or solitary ring, because these articles represent a condensation of money in small bulk and unobtrusive form. The finest workmanship on the gold itself goes for nothing. It is simply "old time" and "old time" is very different in the days of old, though there were plenty of precious stones available if they had been needed. The Pharaohs and their statesmen, the princesses of Egypt and their favored attendants, undoubtedly wore rings, for quite a number of mummies have been found with a dozen finger rings liberally distributed on the eight fingers, besides the indispensable thumb rings. For it is a singular fact that for hundreds of years after the Christian era the custom still prevailed of wearing the wedding ring and the masculine tokens of wealth and power on the thumb.

The ring is so frequently alluded to in the Old Testament as to make it plain that the greatest importance attached to it, even in the pastoral age. In Gen. xli, 42, it is stated that "Pharaoh took off his ring from his hand and put it on Joseph's hand," as a sign of favor. In Esth. iii, 10, mention is made of King Ahasuerus taking his ring from his hand and giving it to Haman, and the context shows that certain written documents were "sealed with the king's ring."

The old time rings were made of all sorts of material. Pliny mentions that iron rings were commonly worn by betrothed persons. It seems likely that rings of gold and silver were worn only by kings, princes and nobles, while less expensive circles of brass, ivory, iron and porcelain or glass were worn by the average citizen.

The oldest gold Egyptian finger ring actually preserved belonged to Amenhotep III, who reigned over Egypt four centuries before Christ was born. Rings of the date of Osiris and Thothmes III, who were contemporaries of the Hebrew Moses, have been found, and they are of common material and doubtful authenticity. The scarabaeus, a beetle which formed the Egyptian token of immortality (from being a sexual) is a common emblem in Egyptian finger rings, and one of the most extravagant "tales of mystery" imagination and humor has a well established foundation, so far as the scarabaeus ring is concerned. It seems to be tolerably certain that Egyptian women wore as many rings as they could crowd on their fingers.

The Egyptians and Romans undoubtedly preferred the left hand for ring purposes, while Cassar, Livy and Tacitus all seem to insist that the Gauls and Britons wore their rings on the right hand. In any case, it seems to have been tacitly agreed that the third finger was the place of honor.

The Hebrew rings worn in those good old days were very ornate and beautiful. Quite a number of them have been preserved, and they put the art of the modern jeweler entirely to the blush. The most beautiful were the pledges of betrothal or wedding gifts. The ceremonies in connection with these rings seem to be foreshadowed in the redemption process specified in Ruth iv. 7. THE PLANET JUPITER.

A radiant star will adorn the sky for several months to come. It is Jupiter, the largest and most brilliant planet of the solar system.

He is now in opposition with the sun, being at sunset towering the meridian at midnight and setting at sunrise, being visible through the whole night.

Jupiter is expected to appear the sun, as the word implies, at its greatest distance from the sun and nearest to the earth, which accounts for its superb appearance.

This majestic planet is equal in volume to 1,300 worlds like ours, and casts a shadow that extends 50,000,000 of miles in space. He is called a planet, but is more like a sun, and probably gives out some light and heat. The right-angled visible on his surface through the telescope indicate the action of mighty forces, and a possible condition approaching incandescence.

Countless ages must pass before the planet's fire grow low, and are succeeded by periods of development, perfection and decay. The three processes that rule the material universe.

Observers, therefore, may watch the progress of world making on this stately member of the sun's family, as the telescope reveals the varying belts, the rifts the bright spots, and especially the famous red spot, showing that fierce forces are raging within and beneath the cloud atmosphere that envelops the planet.

Those who are familiar with the planet's story will take a deeper interest in watching the course of the bright star that reigns supreme, and that may be recognized at a glance as, looming above the southeastern horizon like a young moon, he makes his way toward the zenith.

Why mothers give their children such deadly poison is surprising when one can relieve the child of its peculiar troubles by using Dr. Acker's Baby Soother. It contains no opium or morphine. DEMOCRATIC SUCCESS.

It has been said that as goes New York, so goes the country in '92. If such a prediction is a safe theory upon which to base our calculations, then the country so far as the Democratic party is concerned, is all right. New York, in the election of last week, rolled up a big majority for the Democrats and this means that it will most likely go Democratic next year. Whether the candidate on the Democratic Presidential ticket is to be Hill or Cleveland matters little. The state is thoroughly aroused, and it is not so much for the man, as it is a principle, they expect to fight for. With the state of New York lost to the Republicans they can have but little to hope for in re-electing their President in '92. Then there is Massachusetts, Iowa and Indiana that can be counted on as absolutely safe for the Democrats, and with the great state of New York thrown in, the outlook is hopeful and cheering indeed.

McKinley and the big tax which triumphed in Ohio. Yet, little else could have been expected there. That state has always been conceded to the Republicans, and to their doctrines and idea of government. Campbell went down, but he made a brave and gallant fight, and he made it in the face of great difficulties. The Democratic party will not look to Ohio for much encouragement in the Presidential contest of next year, but the attention of her leaders will be turned to the Northeast and Southwest. Here great inroads already have been made upon the enemy, and so sure as the people are made to realize the truth of our Democracy, then will its principles prevail. The great idea before us and the one that confronts the nation is the issue of just taxation, "A Tariff for Revenue Only." This is the only true theory of government. A system that takes from the people their hard earned dollars and puts them into the pockets of the rich capitalist, is an unfair and unjust system. No people can prosper where the laws are made to protect a few at the expense of the many. It is a question of good government. Those thinking men of all classes begin to understand and the victories of last week but indicate how they will act hereafter when the question is again plainly put before them.

THE NEWS suggests to Mr. George Mercer, the delegate from this county to the Farmers' Alliance convention at Elizabethtown this week, that he lay before that honorable body the condition of the roads in this county and have them taken into their consideration. If the farmers of this county want money, there is no surer way of getting it than through the medium of good county roads. They will pay 100 per cent. for every dollar invested in them.

In view of the close fight for the Speakership of the House of the next Legislature, the position the few Alliance members will occupy in relation to the Democratic caucus is being discussed. General Castellan has said that the Democratic Committee will not undertake to determine the qualifications of the members of that caucus.

A COMMITTEE will call upon Governor Brown this week to ascertain what is to be done about Kentucky's exhibit at the World's Fair. If nothing more he might send in a copy of the new Constitution.

It is surmised that the Flower that bloomed so beautifully in New York last week may cover the nation as a Presidential possibility next year.

ABOUT one hundred of the convicts that escaped from Tennessee have been captured in Kentucky and taken back to Nashville.

THERE is soon to be another railroad built out of Cloverport to Sloan's coal mines, a distance of ten miles.

IN New York the Democrats have the Legislature, which means success for a Democratic Senator.

SAN FRANCISCO wrote the National Democratic and Republican Conventions next year.

Sudden Death of W. W. Smart.

W. W. Smart, a prominent and well-to-do farmer living in the Hill's Ban neighborhood, five miles from this city, was found dead in his orchard about 10 o'clock last Saturday morning. The cause of death was apoplexy.

He had just said his interest in the home place, where he was living, to his brother Joe, and had retired to his study in this city which he expected to occupy this week.

Mr. Smart was one of the hardest working men in the whole country, and had by this means and economy accumulated a very nice estate. He was a very charitable man too with all, kind to his neighbors and devoted to his family. He was 48 years old.

His funeral occurred from his home at 2 o'clock last Sunday. It was conducted by the Masonic Lodge of this city, of which he was a member, assisted by Rev. W. K. Penrod. The funeral was largely attended from this city and the neighborhood where he lived. He leaves a wife to mourn his loss.

Dr. W. B. White, Jr., of Louisville, and formerly of this city, died suddenly at Derby, Ind., on Tuesday last week. He was there on a professional visit and died of congestion after an illness of about ten days. Dr. White was a fine young dentist of much promise, and his death comes with terrible severity upon his bereaved mother and wife. He leaves one infant son. He was buried at Carey Hill, Louisville.

Mr. Owen Raitt, one of the oldest citizens of the town, died at his residence last Monday. Mr. Raitt has been feeble for several months and his death was not unexpected. He was one of the old land marks of the place and had lived on the corner which he has occupied continuously for the last fifty years was one of the first houses built in that part of the city. He was a good citizen, honest and conscientious in all his dealings and a faithful member of the M. E. Church South of this city. His funeral occurred in his residence yesterday afternoon. Rev. Hamilton officiating.

The Court of Claims meets next Monday at Hardinsburg. A good long petition will go up from this city asking that body to appropriate a sufficient sum to raise the iron bridge at this place. It is a much needed improvement and the court will certainly grant the prayers of the petitioners. The bridge is very much out of repair and should have attention at once.

The Sawyer Bros. completed the painting of Sulzer's mammoth storehouse last week, and it now shows up beautifully. It is the talk of the town and Mr. Sulzer's enterprise is justly and favorably commented upon by everybody. It is one of the largest and handsomest business houses in the country and is a living monument to his thrift and enterprise. This town ought to have a few more live men in it like Sam Sulzer.

The Rev. Wm. of Evansville, Ind., who has been assisting the Rev. Penrod, on pastor of this place, in a protracted meeting in the M. E. Church South for the past two weeks, to say that Mr. Wm. file the bill is putting it quite tame. One would have to travel some distance to find his superior, and as to equals they are very scarce. Some of his sermons would do credit to celebrities of twice his age. If the Indiana conference would take a notion to transfer him, he would be received in this community with warm hearts and open arms.

Always use the medicine that will do the most good, and for kidney and liver trouble, Lightning Kidney & Liver Remedy is the best. Messrs. Gracey & Hadlow, Barlow, O., says: "We have handed medicines of different kinds for years and have never had anything so good as equals Lightning Kidney & Liver Remedy. One of our customers has been suffering for years with kidney trouble, and has used a great deal of medicine, but did not receive much benefit, until he used your medicine. He finally tried Lightning Kidney & Liver Remedy, and will use nothing else. He says he would rather pay the price for it than to take the risk of getting nothing." For sale by all dealers.

Ground Broke Last Saturday For Another Large Brick Plant in This City.

CAPACITY 50,000 A DAY.
The brick industries of this town are just beginning to be developed. There is not a day passes but what brings strangers to our city from all over the country to examine our clays and investigate the feasibility of the manufacture of vitrified brick here. There is no question about it being one of the coming industries of the country and of the country's credit.

The demand for brick is increasing daily, and the demand for brick is increasing daily. The demand for brick is increasing daily. The demand for brick is increasing daily.

SULZER'S

One half of the Meade News and "Billy" passed through our village Saturday, the "other half" was probably in Brandenburg at the time.

On Beauchamp's farm is a tenement building situated right under the Sugar Tree bridge and trestle, of the L. & N. & T. railroad. This building is now occupied by a Mr. Woodman. Last Saturday night Woodman was aroused about 12 o'clock by the smell of coal oil and the roar of fire. Springing from his bed, rushing out of the house, he discovered a pile of fagots in the chimney corner, saturated with oil and afire. Fortunately he was in time to save the house by dashing the combustible fagots away, though the fire had already gotten a tolerable fair hold on the building. Had the house burned the Sugar Tree Run bridge would have gone with it. If the object was to injure Beauchamp, the burning of the hotel fell upon an innocent party. Henry Gibson, for he yet owned it at the time of the fire, though by the next night it would have been Beauchamp's. Having failed to accomplish their object in burning the hotel, the fiends probably thought they would get revenge by burning his tenement building out on his farm.

The people are uneasy and considerably excited, and should anybody be caught in the act of firing another's house, it would be pretty hard to prevent a first-class hanging down there in that Sample country. A man that will go at the dead hour of midnight and put the torch to his neighbor's house is a dangerous citizen, and the officers of the county should use every means of apprehending the guilty parties.

A Card.
To my friends, patrons and the general public. I am not a member of the great coffin trust, but have made arrangement with an out side coffin works where a man can purchase undertakers supplies without joining or leaving any association of an association whose object seems to be to rob the dead.

We will add to our stock of furniture a first-class stock of undertakers goods that you can purchase at reasonable prices. G. W. JORDAN & CO.

Commendable.
All claims not commensurate with the high character of Syrup of Figs are purposely avoided by the Cal. Fig Syrup Company. It acts gently on the kidneys, liver and bowels, cleansing the system effectually, but it is not a cure-all and makes no pretensions that every bottle will be substantiated.

A TELLING CONTRAST.

IN THEIR OLD LIMITED SPHERE
WOMEN ARE WELL PAID.

A Comparison Between the Condition of Women Who Do What Used to Be Called Women's Work and Those Who Do What Used to Be Called Men's Work.

The working woman's sphere used to be confined chiefly to household work. And it is a notable fact that in those days the new papers contained no stories about women dying of starvation and overwork in tenement houses. If any body died from these causes it was a man.

Descriptions of the agonies of starving workingwomen and their families are now a feature of the penny papers. Only a few days ago a woman in Jersey City who had worked in a big tobacco factory and was thrown out of employment by her advanced years and inability to handle the tobacco leaf as deftly as the younger generation looked herself up in her room to wait till the pangs of hunger snapped the life cord. She almost died.

Such an occurrence twenty years ago would have been commented upon by the newspapers and statesmen all over the country, and the philosophers would have philosophized to the extent of a book on the subject; but the average citizen reads the little story without emotion. It disturbs him no more than a view of the dirty streets or a struggle to get a seat in an elevated train.

WHERE WOMAN NEVER STARVES.

And right here it may be asked, in view of the present condition of workingmen, "Has any one ever heard of a woman, sticking her foot in the lion's sphere of working women—domestic service—suffering for lack of the necessities of life?" The newspapers record no such instances. One would be such a novelty that the ambition of the museum men to secure unheard of curiosities would be aroused.

The fact is that the only women dependent on their daily work for subsistence who are comfortably situated, with a few exceptions, are the domestic servants. All the thirty ones have their bank accounts, and they don't know what it is to work for food or clothing. Moreover, their labor is comparatively light, and they have real homes.

So thoroughly is this fact recognized that the societies devoted to improving the conditions of working women and helping them in their difficulties with employers exclude servants from their range of work.

Mrs. M. J. Creagh, superintendent of the Working Women's Protective union, gives the reason, as follows:

"The working women in stores, factories and offices need all the assistance the union can give, for they are the outcasts. Women who work as domestics may sometimes have reasonable grounds for complaint, but their condition is so far above that of the other working women that they can always get along comfortably. They can get places whenever they want them, receive good wages, don't know what hunger is, and are well acquainted with the looks of a bank book. They don't need help.

"It is this poor saleswoman, the overworked factory girl and the sewing woman that has to be helped to live.

MRS. CREAGH'S OPINION.

"Considering the board matter, they do not get one-half or one-third as much as the servants and have to work longer. Besides, they are often cheated out of their want earnings. If they are sick for a time they lose their little pay, and perhaps their places are filled before they recover. The servant girl, on the other hand, gets her wages right along, and if she is in a good family she receives such medical and other attention as the store girl cannot receive. She is, in fact, settled, while her sisters in the world of business depend on their week's salary for food and lodging the following week, and a few days' sickness means to them starvation and inadequate attendance or a journey to a charity hospital.

"Therefore this society gives all its attention to women outside of domestic service. As women go further and further into the business world we have more to do than ever. Every day we have brought to our notice cases where rich employers try to beat women out of sums varying from twenty-five cents to $50.

"The records here show, better than anything I know of, the slavery into which women have been brought of late years. Employers know that women have not the money to pay lawyers to sue for them, so they take advantage of their helplessness whenever they can. It is remarkable, however, that they settle up with great rapidity when the women come here to complain. Our counsel conducts a worthy work free of charge and has got verdicts in the civil courts for more than $50,000 since the union began its work."

When Mrs. Creagh was asked why the wages of girls in factories, stores and offices were so small, she answered in almost the same way as Miss Van Etten did.

Women, she said, took the places of men in many occupations without organizing themselves to obtain fair compensation. They took anything they could get. They expected to get married some time, and the work was a temporary expedient, at first, to obtain pin money. Now many of them find that they have really to support themselves, and their meager wages won't do it. Still they bear their hardships, waiting ever for the cavalier who is to come along and relieve them. With some work is a necessity, with others it is not. But few of them seem to consider that men have suffered in consequence of the lower standard of wages.—New York Commercial Advertiser.

How a King Keeps Cool.

Although one may not keep cool, it is some satisfaction to read how others manage it. There is the king of Siam, for instance. He is said to have in one of his country palaces a wonderful pavilion. It was built by a Chinese engineer as a refuge for the king during the extreme heat of summer. The walls, ceiling and floors are formed of pieces of plate glass an inch thick. They are so perfectly fitted together with a transparent cement that the joints are invisible and no fluid can penetrate. The pavilion is twenty-eight feet long and seventeen wide and stands in the middle of a huge basin made of beautifully colored marbles.

When the king enters the pavilion the single door is closed and cemented. Then the sluice gates are opened and the basin is filled with water. Higher and higher it rises, until the pavilion is covered and only the ventilators at the top connect it with the open air. When the heat of the sun is so great that the water almost boils on the surface of the freshest fountains this pavilion is deliciously cool. And this is the way the king of Siam cools himself off in hot weather. It sounds very delightful.—Exchange.

An Automatic Wrapper.

One of the most ingenious and at the same time practically useful among the automatic machines which have been introduced is a device which forms, fills, weighs and seals packages in those establishments where large quantities of goods, such as fine cut tobacco, soda, starch, etc., are constantly put up. The operation by which this result is accomplished, though decidedly novel, is not at all complex in any particular, the machine consisting merely of a series of forming blocks, receptacles, folders, gummers and feeders, all working in mutual harmony, so that the packages are smoothly and continuously produced.

The forming blocks successively size the paper which instantly afterward is wrapped around them, folded and gummed at the end; the paper sacks are then plunged into receptacles filled with the commodity with which they are intended, finally folded on top and sealed.—New York Sun.

Baptizing Bells.

An extraordinary feature in the career of bells is their undergoing the process of baptism before being used. This ceremony is performed by the Roman Catholics at the present day, who say that the bells thus receive power to act as preservatives against thunder and lightning and storms. An humbler rite is observed in the Protestant church, and the celebrations which take place are more of a jovial than a religious character.—Exchange.

Fairs given to raise money for charitable objects have long been recognized as among the quickest means known for emptying pocketbooks and loading unwary purchasers with all sorts of things for which they have no use, and the prices demanded for the articles are said to be usually quite out of proportion to their value.

In France a man on entering the bonds of matrimony renders himself legally responsible, not only for the support of his wife, but for that of her parents, in case they should become destitute, and the same obligation is incurred by the wife in regard to the father and mother of her husband.

SPEAK NO ILL.

May, speak no ill; a kindly word
Can never leave a sting behind;
And oh! to breathe each tale we've heard
Is far beneath a noble mind.

Fall off a better seed is sown
By choosing thus a kinder plan.
For if by little good be known
Still let us speak the best we can.

Give me the heart that fain would hide—
Would fain another's fault efface;
How can it pleasure human pride
To prove humanity but base?

No, let us reach a higher mood.
A nobler estimate of man.

Be earnest in the search for good,
And speak of all as best we can.

Then speak no ill, but lenient be
To other's failings as your own;
If you're the first to fault to see,
Be not the first to make it known.

For life is but a passing day;
No lips may tell how short its span;
When, oh! the little time we stay,
Let's speak of all the best we can.
—Once a Week.

Ants and Their Uses.

During twelve months spent in the Australian colonies in the years 1870-1 I had more opportunities than were pleasant of studying the habits of ants. These insects, as is well known, are not only a nuisance, but an absolute pest in hot countries. They march in myriads and destroy everything in their road. In justice to the ants, I am bound, however, to admit that I have found them useful in more ways than one. For instance, I bought an opossum skin rug from a native. I soon became painfully aware of the fact that it literally swarmed with fleas and other vermin. In vain did I exhaust my stock of pepper. Even turpentine seemed to have no effect beyond increasing the reckless activity of these irritating settlers.

At last in despair I threw my rug down on an ant hill. In less than half an hour every flea and objectionable parasite was eaten, but the rug was full of ants. I therefore hung it on a mimosa bush, and as soon as the ants found they were suspended they hastened to leave the rug and descended by the bush as best they could.

Again, I had killed a snake in Tasmania and wished to clean and bleach the skeleton, which I intended to have mounted as a necklace. I left the body near an ants' nest. In a few hours there was a vast host of ants on the bones. The snake soon did the rest.—Gentleman's Magazine.

Girls in Vermont's Celebration.

The most beautiful feature of Vermont's centennial celebration at Bennington was the triumphal arch, a massive structure, at least thirty-five feet high. In its lofty turret was a shrine of gold and national colors, occupied by Miss Lillie Adams of Bennington, robed as the Goddess of Liberty. Just below on the top of the arch, were 125 girls selected from the public schools, clad in pure white and with flowing hair, who sang patriotic songs accompanied by a cornet, as the parade passed beneath the archway. Below the arch the arm arches were filled with maidens, bearing in their hands banners emblazoned in gold and colors with the various coats of arms of the states. At the banquet many notable ladies were present, and the tables were served in part by 300 young women in white.—Boston Woman's Journal.

Queer Collection in the Dead Letter Office.

No brief list could summarize the innumerable strange things that have fallen into the hands of the dead letter office in Washington. There are opium pipes and packages of refined opium, bottled specimens of different kinds of mineral formations thrown up by the Charleston earthquake, boxes of cartridges, percussion caps, quantities of firecrackers and torpedoes, false teeth, corn husking gloves, every imaginable sort of kitchen utensils, carpenter's tools, horns, tambourines, banjos, harmonicas, gold headed canes, and even "spirit photographs."

Many of the objects accumulated come under the "unmailable" head, being of glass or "pointed instruments" which might damage the mails. Bottles or surgical tools are not carried by Uncle Sam unless in boxes or in tin. One hundred dollars' worth of nuggets of virgin gold in a box came in a while ago and are awaiting a claimant. Likewise a damaged plug hat, which had no address, and a grotesque doll about the size of a baby. There are some gloves from the steamship Oregon which were 144 days under water, though they seem to be fairly respectable now and might be worn at a stretch. Some wedding cake is exhibited in the museum that is fifty years old.—Rene Bache in New York Sun.

William Innes died in the time of Corunna, Ind., in 1885, at the age of 80. In 1891, when he was 80 pounds, he was buried in the same place. The remains were disinterred, they were found to be petrified, to look like marble and to weigh exactly 405 pounds.—St. Louis Republic.
